In 1981, the United Nations established the International Day of Peace to be observed as a day of global ceasefire and nonviolence, devoted to commemorating and strengthening the ideals of peace both within and among all nations and peoples.

The School Sisters of Notre Dame is an international congregation of women religious, headquartered in Rome. Worldwide, 3,000 sisters live and minister in 34 countries. The congregation was founded in 1833 to address the educational needs of girls in Bavaria. Today, while many sisters serve as teachers, they do not necessarily work in the classroom. The SSND mission is to educate in the broadest sense, while spreading Jesus' message of love and unity throughout the world. Sisters serve as facilitators of change and personal transformation, especially to those who are poor.
