A blessing is the ministry to which I have been called

has offered me incredibly rich and deep relationships that have changed me and brought me to a deeper relationship with God and with the people I know. Great surprises and challenges over the years have helped me realize how truly blest I am.

The wisdom I would like to share is the importance of integrity in one's life and relationships; this provides a deep peace at the core of one's being and helps one meet challenges as they come along. All of our images of God are metaphor – we can never exhaust the Mystery of God and God's action in all creation.

What drew you to the School Sisters of Notre Dame?

"I live now, not I, but Christ lives in me." (Gal. 2:20). I heard these words at a conference in Chicago to which I had been sent by Notre Dame High School. This passage set direction for my life's work of developing lay leadership in the church. Both the SSND commitment to education and participation in a community of women sharing a mission convinced me to answer this call as a woman religious.

An especially meaningful time in my ministry was when a 60-year-old woman spoke to me about her sexual abuse. She had tried years earlier as a child to speak to adults, including her pastor, who either did not believe her or told her she must have somehow seduced her father. Her words to me were: "I have been waiting a long time to talk to you." That day I received the gift of listening and being available for her healing to begin. I realized then the critical need for women ministers in the church.

What would you like people today to know about SSND?

That we have been and continue to be faithful apostolic women religious striving to respond to the needs of our time with the best gifts God has given us. Day by day we try to "proclaim the good news as School Sisters of Notre Dame, directing our entire lives toward that oneness for which Jesus Christ was sent." (You Are Sent, 4)
