She was asked to return to the Diocese of Jefferson City, where she served as chancellor from 1996 through 2006. Following two years in pastoral service and religious education at St. Joseph in Farmington, she served the congregation as director of the SSND interprovincial novitiate through 2010. ### A memory I have to share...

Much of my time as chancellor involved ministry with victims of abuse. I was most aware, in that ministry, of how God invites one to cooperate with God's will, whether difficult or delightful, and the deep joy that flows from doing God's will.
